

COLLEGE BORÉAL

More than a college, Boréal is part of everyday life

Collège Boréal is a publicly funded, French-language college of applied arts and technology established in Sudbury, Ontario. Since its inception in 1995, Boréal has a dual mandate as not only a post-secondary institution, but also a vital community development organization. Today, Boréal operates 37 sites including seven campuses in 27 Ontario communities and maintains an online presence through Boréal en ligne (Boréal Online).

An innovative educational, cultural and community hub serving the Francophone population of Ontario, Collège Boréal's goal is to produce a highly skilled bilingual workforce that is committed to supporting French-speaking communities and contributing to the economic, social and cultural vitality of the province and the country. To this end, the College offers more than 80 post-secondary education and apprenticeship programs in French, including 25 programs unique to French Ontario, and a suite of other services including continuing education courses, corporate training, employment services, upgrading and literacy and basic skills services, language training, as well as settlement services and language training for newcomers to Canada.

Renewing excellence, year after year

For the 2021-2022 academic year, Boréal ranked first in two of the four government-mandated Key Performance Indicators. For the 20th time in 23 years, Boréal's graduation rate is the highest in the province. Collège Boréal also ranked first in terms of graduate satisfaction for the 17th time over the same period. In fact, Collège Boréal is the only college in Ontario – in the history of KPIs – to be ranked first in two or more indicators in the same year more than once. Only five other colleges have accomplished this, and each only once.

More than ever, Collège Boréal has established itself as an institutional model, an ambassador for the province of Ontario, and a key player within the Franco-Ontarian community.
